Dear Employment Recruiter,

I am applying for the position of Product Development Manager. I was immediately intrigued by the opportunity of traveling down to Salinas to engage with agriculture owners and STEM-related career opportunities in the Salinas Valley. Throughout my childhood, I was always captivated by the fact that my parents and relatives spent countless of hours surrounded by plants and animals everyday. Growing up in the Salinas Valley, I effortlessly fell in love with my county and as I travel and experience other agriculture populated towns, I have yet to find one as special and cultivating Salinas is. My family's hard work and dedication to the agriculture industry in the Salinas Valley inspired me to work as hard as they did.

I am concluding my third year at the University of California, Davis and in the college of Agriculture and Environmental Science. I am planning on receiving my Bachelor of Science in Sustainable Agriculture and Food System in 2020. I come from a low income family of four girls and my parents. A position at your company will allow me to grow as a competitor and view other aspects of agriculture business. I am pursuing a career as an animal breeder, farm manager and an agriculture educator to all schools in Monterey County to provide knowledge to students about the agriculture industry around our homes.

I hope to receive a chance in interviewing with your staff to discuss the opportunity in joining your team. Any assistance to help contribute to my studies and future career is greatly appreciated. I ask that you contact me through email at agtinajero@ucdavis.edu or a call to (831) 682-0953 at any given moment of the day. I look forward to hearing from you and thank you for your time and consideration.

Thank you,

Andrea Guadalupe Tinajero
